GENERAL INSTRUCTIONS.

On account of the larger number of our correspondents, the increased size of the work, and the outlay attending these editions, we are obliged to cease from free distribution of the copies, and request you to

READ CAREFULLY, NOTE ANY POINTS YOU MAY DESIRE TO ESPECIALLY REMEMBER, CORRECT, FILL OUT THE VACANCIES, AND RETURN ALL IN THE ACCOMPANYING ENVELOPE.

As, however, it will be quite a while before we send out our next edition, we would beg you to take your time in mailing this back to us. Do not lay it aside until you have answered every question that you do, or could know anything of.

We are anxious that our following exhibit be very nearly complete.

TO THE MEMBERS AND WELL-WISHERS OF THE McDONALD FAMILY—Greeting:

DEAR RELATIVES AND FRIENDS:—

SCARCELY two years ago, a handful of letters, some small printed slips, and a few isolated names were handed to us in an envelope, backed "Scraps of Genealogy of the McDonald Family," and on these we were to build up the pedigree, wanderings, and history, in fact, of this ancient highland clan. How little did we dream of what a task was before us! For, perhaps, had one third been known of what now we can look back upon as happily passed; or, could even at this late day, a fair part of that be seen, which possibly lies ahead, we might have given up all, as a fruitless task, or might still think more than once before continuing. But, we are hopeful and borrow no trouble for the future. If, out of the small unsatisfactory number of scattered names, on which we had to start, we were able ere over long to send you our first infant edition of eighty-five or six ancestors; and if, with your kind and persistent aid, our list before many months exceeded two hundred and twenty; and if, again, with your unbroken, patient efforts, this present book represents nearly seven hundred McDonald children, and more than five hundred and fifty of those of the McDonald name; if such is the result of our first two years work, then we can truly feel encouraged, and trust that though distant, the realization of our long-felt common wish, will not ever be a vague and shadowy uncertainty. Yes, dear friends, if we can but depend upon a continuance of this indulgent sacrificing spirit on your part, we can fairly say that even the knottiest problems may be solved; and we feel that our appeal to you for seconding our efforts will not be in vain. Your interest should be as great as ours; we are all on an equal footing. It is of course, hardly necessary to add that there is not the slightest trace of speculation in our project; for all, we trust, know by this time, that the work is the idea of Dr. R. H. McDonald, at present of New York City; and that all the expensive outlay thus far made, has been the cheerful gift of his family-love. Philanthropic, progressive and ambitious of spirit, he has ever aimed to bind the scattered members of our name together, to strengthen each other mutually, rise in a grand and powerful body, and wield a strong and good influence in the world, so that this great nation and humanity at large, may feel that the McDonalds as individuals or as a people, have not lived among them in vain. Not that, as it is, we are wanting in noble family traits and deeds, for, were it to come to a list, we would be far from the last; but that we feel how much is yet lacking, and that "onward and upward" must be our motto. In due time, and in its proper place, we may stoop to answer some of the scurrilous accusations made against the early Scotch settlers of Pennsylvania and Virginia, and trust that then we may be able to show some of those proud English writers of New England, and the Middle States, that though we did not cross in the May Flower, or form one of Penn's chosen band, that still, perhaps the Scotch element was, in no respects the inferior of the more favored Puritan or Quaker sects. At present we will content ourselves with saying that we have never found, never heard of a Scotch McDonald, and especially not of this branch, whom we would be ashamed to own as a relative. They have not always been rich in worldly goods, and this in many instances is due to their excessive honesty; but for men of sterling integrity, pure and upright morals, firm religious purpose, without the extremes of Puritanism, or of the creeds of the Friends, they as a class have had few, if any, equals.

Concerning our special line, it is now a pretty well established fact, that its representatives came to this country very shortly after Penn's arrival, possibly in 1685, and settled in New Castle, Pennsylvania, now Delaware, on Mill Creek, Mill Creek Hundred. The first American ancestor, Bryan No. 1, son of a Highland Chief of Glencoe, Scotland, died on his new place in 1707, and his family probably remained there until 1750, when his son, Bryan No. 5 and family, left for Botetourt Co., Va. Of the other children of Bryan No. 1 and of Bryan No. 5, two elder sons we have no farther record, except that we know that Richard No. 9 was alive in 1760, and that James No. 10 went to Carolina near the same year. To find these six lost generations will be our hardest task, but with your kind continued inquiring, reading, and other assistance, we may accomplish even this. On a four months' tour of ours last summer, through the largest portion of the United States, in search of these and other family matters, we were unable to locate anything definite, but have clues that may lead to something in future. In the meanwhile, let every one do his or her utmost to furnish us with additional suggestions and information, and in turn we will not fail to do our share in testing the real and prospective value of whatever they may contribute. You will perceive that we speak less of the more recent branches, for we have so far progressed that the means of obtaining some knowledge of most is within our power; and we know that all by this time, sufficiently feel the importance of our aim to immediately do their utmost when called upon. We have, on this very account, omitted all statements as to the objects, &c., of our work, deeming such as no longer necessary. We may, however, not be able to reach each person separately, so, if you can procure the information for us, without being written to, we shall be just that much advanced to the hastening of final results, and, in addition, we return you our sincere thanks for saving us that amount of extra labor.

"But," some say, "we would readily do all in our power, if we only knew what you wanted, or definitely just where we could assist you. Here is a book, it is true, but we cannot exactly understand what part is intended for us: in fact, among all those names, dates, and the like, we are as it were, lost." Well, to a certain extent, the objection is a fair one, so, if you will patiently follow us for a few moments, we will try and clear up some of the points of difficulty. First, we want a complete pedigree of the McDonald Family, and in particular of this Bryan branch, so that any names not yet in our possession leave us just that far short of our mark. If, therefore, on examining the sheets, you find one or more not included of those you are familiar with, or only know of, you may feel that this is one place in which your services can be called into aid. And here let us remark, that you need not fear repeating what another may have sent; the more persons we have agreeing to a statement, the more probable it looks, and oftentimes through your withholding, we lose it all together. Furthermore, do not be unduly influenced by any change in the orthography of the name; remember that there are Macdonalds whose names now spell anything but that. It has at times passed through many forms, prominent among which are McDonald, McDonnell, McDonl, McDanl, McDaniel, McDanell, McDougall, &c. As for identifying a name in this edition, the index will assist you; but even without an index the process is very simple. Every person has a different number, and in case of the McDonald children of the McDonald girls, who have changed their names, the number is preceded by an A. If the party is married, and we have any of the children, the number occurs twice, once as offspring next as parent. As, for instance, on page 1, Bryan No. 5 is one of the children, on page 2 he is parent, and his children take their numbers right in after the last child of the preceding family. Of course the family of Bryan No. 5, should, unless some of the older children were unmarried, really come on page 5; but as we have no records of John 2, William 3, James 4, we pass them by for the present, and place No. 5 on second page. Again, let us suppose for instance, that on turning over the leaves, we find our name as No. 493, on page 100. Here, of course, we are put down as a child, and as a son of 257. If we were married and had children, our family would come in its turn after the families of the numbers that precede us. If, now, we wish to trace our pedigree, we begin: first child of Doctor R. H. McDonald, 257, and looking back to where 257 first occurs, in the margin, we find it on page 37 as elder son of Colonel James, 84. Following back, we see on page 10, that 84 is the first born of Major Richard, 26; and on page 4 that Major Richard is fifth child of Joseph, 12; and that on page 2, No. 12 springs from Bryan 5, and he in turn on page 1, from Bryan 1, which is as far as we go in America. Our pedigree would then be Bryan 1, Joseph 12, Richard 26, James 84, Richard 257, and self 493. By this means then, you will, we hope, meet with no difficulty in placing a person. If a name occurs once, is married, has children, and is wanting the second time as parent, you may rest assured that we are without any definite knowledge of the family and are now looking for them.

We have thus far noted two ways of assisting us; one of helping in finding the almost wholly unknown, the next in furnishing the families of the partly obtained, and we have designated the means of knowing which parties come under each head. A third and last point under this division we would call your attention to, in the filling up of the vacant lines of this book.

With these difficulties explained, you will readily be able to see how much is wanting in looking through the printed lists, and besides what is here, we would like for every single person to have answered all of the twenty-eight questions in our accompanying genealogical blanks. If a person, it matters not how small or obscure, is living, dead, or unmarried, say so; do not leave the line vacant, put something in every space, concerning which there could possibly be any doubt. If the printed statements are correct, you need not rewrite them, but merely say "correct" in each corresponding column, thereby confirming our work, and enabling us more quickly to detect places defective or wholly wanting. If you are uncertain in your corrections, adjoin a star, and if certain of that which we have marked doubtful, place our stars in parentheses, thus (*). In the "Buried Where" column give, if possible, the cemetery; and if they have grave stones suffix a small s, as here (s). In this and the "Died When" spaces, if parties are living, we would like to have their full post-office addresses, in order that we may the more easily reach them, and you mutually know the one where the other is. If there are other parties informed regarding those we are in search of, please send us their directions, and we will try and correspond with them, if you are unable to do so.

Before each lady-partner's name, if not otherwise stated, Miss is understood.

This third edition is a little different from all of the preceding ones, and varies some from the final form, but each is necessary for the end to be attained.

You will we trust, now meet with no great points of obscurity in the plan or development of the work, nor find any difficulty in filling the questions out, but if you should be any way crowded for space, use the accompanying genealogical blanks.

Relying then on a hearty co-operation on your part, hoping soon and often to hear from you, and thanking you for past as well as future assistance, we are

Sincerely,

F. V. McDONALD,

Yale College, New Haven, Conn.

WE must, however, before closing, return our special thanks to the following parties, who have so willingly and persistently aided us in our researches. We take pleasure in commending their family pride and active interest to our numerous related friends, and feel confident in saying that should it be necessary for those similarly in distress to call for assistance, among such as these their cry can not be unheeded. We hope too, that as we place the names and localities of other kindred spirits before you, all will try and warm once more into life the slumbering emblems of Macdonald fellowship, so dimmed by the estrangements of time, change of residence, difference in material prosperity, and like results of war, sickness and other uncontrollable causes. We should each bear in mind that no highland clan of old surpassed the Macdonalds in bravery, excellence and friendly regard for their fellow-man, whether under a common or different chief; and that to this day the same feeling lives strong within us, if we will but grant it expression. We hope before long to issue a little Macdonald Address Book, wherefrom all may know whither each member of the fold has strayed, and we trust that no one will rest content with our showing until he has proved it by actual test. The names in our possession are not sufficiently accompanied by their addresses to warrant our issuing the book at present; we ask you, therefore, to give this your earliest attention.

The number of our contributors has, we are happy to say, considerably increased, but is still not as large as it should be for a work of this nature. May we not look for a yet greater co operation in our future endeavors.

Any omissions of this list we shall be happy to rectify. We are thankfully indebted to:

INDEX TO DESCENDANTS BEARING THE McDONALD NAME.

This list includes every person of the McDonald name in the book, and the number following marks the page on which it first occurs, by referring to which you can find the genealogical number. With this list, should you desire to see whether his or her family is given, you can look along for it in the numerical order of the families, as they are systematically arranged. Thus Floyd Fechtig McDonald occurs first on page 14, where we find his number to be 120. Turning on by the family numbers, we see 120 on page 56 and the children of 120 in the same place. The other means of tracing the pedigrees are explained in the Introduction.

INDEX TO DESCENDANTS OF MOTHERS BEARING BEFORE MARRIAGE THE McDONALD NAME.

The manner of using this index differs in no respect from the former, except that the families of these descendants, on account of the incomplete condition in which we have them, are not given in this exhibit. The number of the page refers, therefore, to the only place in which the name is met with. To distinguish the offspring of the McDonald and non-McDonald names, we have prefixed an A to all of the numbers of the latter.

Further Remarks: To Hon. Isaac E. McDonald we would herewith return our sincere thanks, for the prompt and efficient assistance furnished by him, in the records of his father's, brothers' and sisters' families. We would only that all might imitate his accuracy and completeness, two indispensable qualities in a work of this nature.

Further Remarks: Doctor Griffin was one of the earliest contributors to the family history, and has ever since done all in his power to further its progress. Born in Kentucky, he has been in most every State of the Union, and that at a day when traveling was largely slow and difficult. He has always made it his aim to look up any and every McDonald he could hear of, to talk with him about the name, history, &c.; and to this genial spirit we are indebted for much invaluable information.

Further Remarks: Floyd still lives on the old Joseph McDonald Homestead, in one of the fairest spots of this part of Virginia. And, at the same time that he strives to keep the old place as lovely and as green as ever, he also guards against allowing its hallowed associations to fade from our memory. Nor does his desire to hold fresh ancestral recollections rest alone with his own immediate kin, but stretches itself out into all the other branches. Indeed, without him, and his long-yearred interest in the McDonald name, our family history would have been but the shadow of its present self; and would, perhaps, despite the constant, untiring efforts of Dr. R. H. McDonald, have ever remained, but a thing of the future.

Further Remarks: One of our most earnest and persistent co-workers; and a man, who, for gentleness and amiability of disposition has few equals and no superior. He lives in the old Byran (No. 5) McDonald Homestead, the first house of our name in the State of Virginia; and though now somewhat enfeebled, still, with the assistance of his grandson, David Rice, Jr., keeps the place in all its native beauty.

Further Remarks: Dr. R. H. McDonald, the originator of this Family-History, has from early youth ever shown a marked disposition for acquiring and imparting all possible knowledge of our name and its connections; for re-uniting them, at least in thought, to the mutual strength and advantage of all, and for striving to raise the clan in our own and others' estimation, and thereby somewhat restore it to that position of influence and power once its supreme in the highland glens of Scotland. And, amid all the vicissitudes of a most eventful life, he has kept his purpose steadily in view, until now, at last, it gradually assumes some definite form. What he has had to meet with in his efforts to gather in the widely scattered members of this extensive family, none can know but those similarly engaged; and how cheerfully and persistently he has toiled alone through all, sacrificing time, health and means, must ever be but partially understood. It is, we trust, needless to add that there are no pecuniary considerations in this project, and that the only return he can hope for, is a hearty appreciation of the aim on our part, an effort to sustain him in the forward way he would point out, and the contributing of our share in making the world feel richer and better, because we as a people have lived in it.
